

Sustainability, Economy, and History

Suggested criteria for evaluating proposals with cultural and historical resources issues

Ramie A. Gougeon, Ph.D.
Pensacola Archaeological Society

Outline

- Cultural resources are non-renewable resources
- Federal actions require evaluations for impacts to cultural resources
- Sustainable development includes heritage tourism
- Heritage tourism is a major economic driver
- Suggested criteria for project evaluations

What are cultural resources?

- Called “historic properties” under NHPA
- Any prehistoric or historic district, site, building structure, or object included in or eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.
[36 C.F.R. § 800.16.(1)(1)]

buildings, etc.

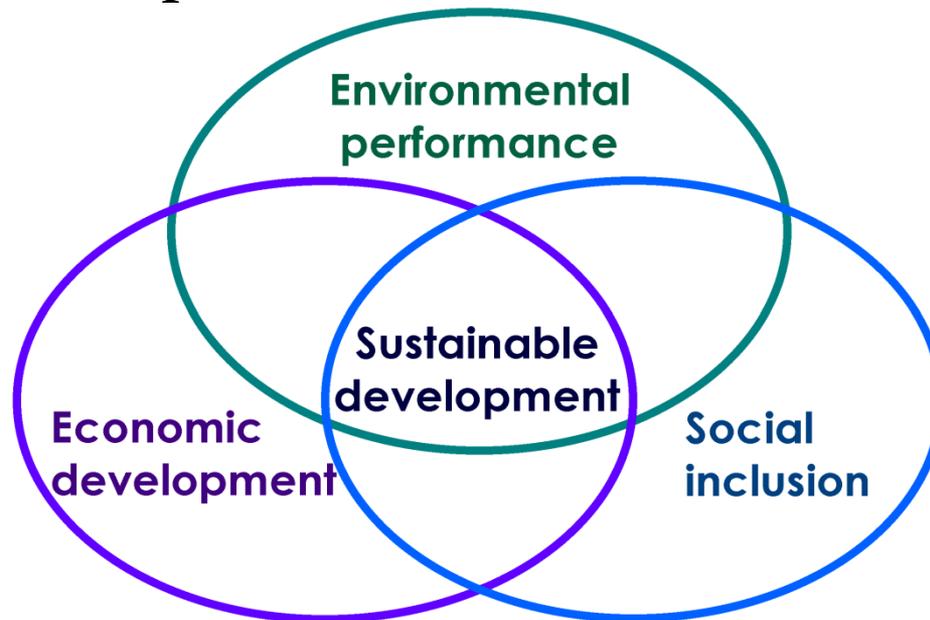

RESTORE is a Federal action

- Federal actions trigger NEPA and NHPA processes
- Florida's SHPO will review projects for potential impacts to cultural resources
 - 30-day review period
 - Failure to comply with regulations can result in loss of funding

Sustainable Environments

- Sustainable environments are achieved when there are maximum positive impacts and minimal negative environmental, economic and social consequences from our developments

Sustainable Environments

- Cultural resources are as fragile and non-renewable as natural resources
- Protection of cultural resources is an important aspect of any sustainable development efforts

Heritage Tourism as Economic Development

- What is “heritage tourism?”
 - Traveling to experience places, artifacts, and activities that authentically represent the stories of people past and present
- Focus is on the whole place – not just one attraction
 - Learning history and culture through immersion
 - Enjoying the natural environment and the cultural and historic setting
 - Experiencing the unique aspects of a place, not that which can be found everywhere

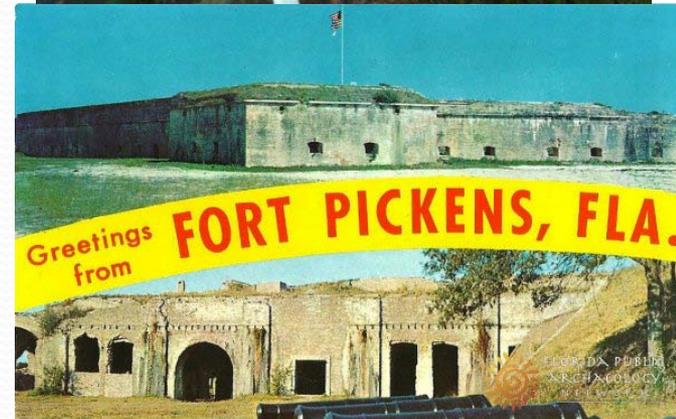

Heritage Tourism as Economic Development

- Estimated that every 1000 tourists = 10 jobs₁
- Diversifies local economy₂
 - No “off season” to historical and cultural sites!

Intersection of Heritage Tourism and Sustainable Development

- Identifies and conserves cultural resources
- Accurately interprets and manages resources
- Provides authentic visitors experiences through understanding of impact of tourists on communities
- Stimulates and achieves revenues from cultural resources by protecting, marketing, and promoting them

Can RESTORE projects build on what we already have?

Suggested Criteria

- Does applicant budget (in time and money) for regulatory cultural resources evaluations?
- Does the proposed project enhance cultural or historic resources?

Summary

- Sustainable environments maximize positive impacts and minimize negative effects of development
- Historic tourism is a major economic driver and fits within the ideals of sustainable development
- Federal actions require the identification of cultural resources like archaeological sites and historic districts
- RESTORE Act projects will have to be evaluated for impacts to cultural resources
- RESTORE Act projects can contribute positively to sustainable development through heritage tourism
